Welcome to Pest-Ventures 2010

Pest-Ventures has become a firm favourite in the pest professionals' calendar with a reputation for first class technical content and a convivial atmosphere for discussion and networking.

Having taken a break in 2009, our technical team has drawn on the latest research and thinking to develop this year's exciting programme.

Not surprisingly, rodenticide resistance looms large with plenty of information on the steps being taken to combat this problem and a chance to discuss what else needs to be done.

We also throw the spotlight on best pest practice using Westminster's 'Aiming High' project as an example of how public and private sectors can work successfully together.

It should be no surprise either to see a full morning devoted to bedbugs as they continue to present control challenges.

The food industry is also included. Our session on innovations in storage pest management should interest food manufacturers and pest control contractors alike.

Finally, urban gulls may not be a pest that every local authority or pest control business has to tackle but, if you've got them, then controlling them is a major issue. We update you on the latest thinking.

Not registered for VAT?

Organisations that are unable to reclaim VAT can benefit by booking and paying for their Pest-Ventures places before 31 December 2009. This is because VAT will be raised from 15% back to 17.5% from 1 January 2010.

Both rates are shown on the Registration form, just select the appropriate rate when filling in the form.

Who should attend?

If you are serious about professional pest control then the Pest-Ventures seminars will help you keep up-to-date with current research and best practice in the industry.

So, whatever your role, a top technician in the public or private sector, a facilities manager, or the person responsible for pest control in a Local Authority, water or food company, these seminars are for you.

About Pest-Ventures

First held in 1999, Pest-Ventures bridges the gap between pest control researchers, manufacturers and practitioners bringing together people from across the pest management business.

The 2010 programme has been developed by the Pest-Ventures technical team of Adrian Meyer and John Simmons from Acheta working closely with Frances McKim and Helen Riby, the publishers of Pest, the industry's only independent magazine and the Pest+ e-news. Frances and Helen also run the communications business, Active Solutions. Moira Hart from the PR and communications consultancy, Dewpoint Marketing, completes the Pest-Ventures team.

Interested in exhibiting?

Do you provide products or services which complement the 2010 programme? We have room for a few relevant exhibition displays on each of the two days.

If you are interested in taking a stand please contact Moira Hart for details. Call: 01664 822678 or email: moira@dewpointmarketing.co.uk

The Venue

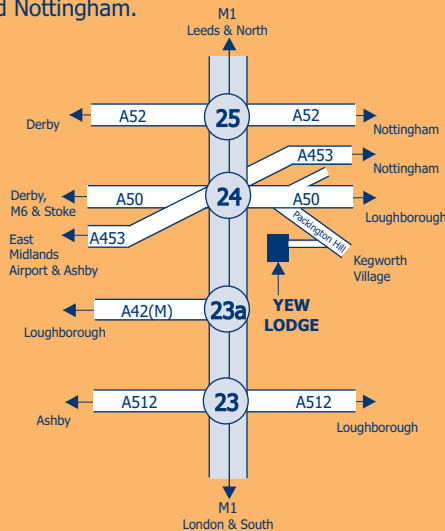

The Pest-Ventures seminars are held at the Best Western Premier Yew Lodge Hotel in modern conference facilities.

The hotel is located at Packington Hill, Kegworth, Nottinghamshire, Tel: 01509 672518, Fax: 01509 674730. For 'sat-nav' users, the post code is DE74 2DF. The best hotel rates can be obtained online (currently £95 for bed & breakfast) but just like budget afares, the fuller, the hotel the higher the rates become. Bookings can be made direct with the Yew Lodge at www.yewlodgehotel.co.uk or by phone.

A list of other local hotels and guesthouses can be supplied to delegates on request.

The Yew Lodge is conveniently sited close to junction 24 of the M1, with the M42 and East Midlands Airport nearby.

For those travelling by train, the nearest stations are at Loughborough, Derby and Nottingham.
